MANHATTAN'S FIRST WHISKEY DISTILLERY SINCE PROHIBITION

One hundred years after the last whiskey distillery in Manhattan shut its doors, Great Jones Distilling Co. is bringing this iconic spirit back to the Big Apple. Our home at 686 Broadway in the NoHo neighborhood of Manhattan is a monument to the rich culture of Prohibition-era New York, and a celebration of whiskey – past and present.

The spirit of New York drives everything we do. It's why we use 100% New York-sourced ingredients in our craft whiskeys, and it's what inspires us to deliver experiences worthy of the best of our city. Whether you're touring our distillery, sipping a craft cocktail, or enjoying a locally-sourced meal at our restaurant, you're part of a New York tradition, reborn.

NAT'S ON BANK GIFT CARD*RETAIL VALUE: $150

Nat's is a neighborhood local, where people gather to celebrate the end of the day, every day. We nurture community, and the opportunity to break bread with friends in a fun, artful environment. Our food is elevated, New York classics but with a touch of whimsy. Healthy, yet sinful when you wish.

THAT'S A HEAD SCRATCHER

RETAIL VALUE: $50

FLOWER OF SPRING

RETAIL VALUE: $50

ARTIST: FRAZIER MOORE

Until recently, my hands-on experience with creativity was limited to fingers punching a keyboard. Even as a preschooler I banged on an antique Underwood typewriter, imagining words of my own.

Later, I spent more than four decades in the journalism game, thirty of those years as television reporter/critic for The Associated Press. Then, I wrote a book. Enough! Enough writing, enough words!

SPAGHETTI & STEELBALLS

RETAIL VALUE: $50

So, a few years ago, I began a different journey through the wilderness of I-don't-know-what-I'm-doing. I transformed the front hallway of my Greenwich Village apartment (2B) into what has become a very jammed Studio 2B. Along the way I have put my hands on everything in reach – from copper and plexiglas to resin and rubber, from PVC pipe to REBAR to that awful sticky foam you spray to fill the mouse holes in your baseboard – in creating my artistic, gloriously nonverbal pieces.
